Press Release

Website offers information on school board candidates and election procedures

for Immediate Release

October 24, 2008

South Bend School Board at-large candidate Kyle Chamberlin announced Friday the launch of the Voter Information Center on his campaign website. The candidate-neutral internet portal provides objective information designed to enable voters to make an educated decision in the 2008 South Bend Community School Corporation Board of School Trustees At-Large election.

The Voter Information Center, located at <http://www.kylechamberlin.com/election.html>, includes answers to frequently asked questions about voting in the school board election, a list of all at-large candidates with links to their respective campaign websites, and a compilation of questionnaires offered by local media outlets to board hopefuls.

“I have met thousands of voters over the last three months – knocking on doors, attending high school sporting events, and participating in community forums,” said Chamberlin, “and many of them have asked me about the procedural aspects of voting in this atypical non-partisan race. For example, many citizens are unaware that voting straight party does not cast a ballot in the school board election. I have also heard from numerous area residents who are frustrated by how little they know about the crowded at-large candidate field. The Voter Information Center was designed to ensure everyone can feel confident they are making an informed decision in this important election.”
